yeah I know you did not ask!

I suppose another one you could file under ironic. Certainly something to ponder on.

I was working with one of my Spanish tutors when somehow the subject of George Floyd and Michael Brown came up. My Mexican tutor who lives in Tijuana told me that in Mexico the American police have the reputation of being brutal. I had no real argument with that, but said, "and the police in Mexico?" To which he replied, "they are not brutal, simply corrupt."

What a world we live in when those who should be serving and protecting are frequently doing neither.

And so it goes.
