Señora – aka Robin – is down to singing in only two choirs, the Allegro Choir which is for persons 50 years and older and her hospice choir. She sang for 22 years with the choir at the Center for Spiritual Living until its director became too old to lead them and they discontinued it. The Allegro choir has grown to over a 100 souls.

This is Allegro's holiday concert. It includes a mixture of songs from various traditions... and many familiar tunes. Señora is sitting down to the left of the piano in a green blouse. Ain't she pruttee.

Enjoy.
