

Brooks & Dunn - Neon Moon

by Rev. Joe Dirt - Sunday, March 03, 2024

<https://curmudgeon-alley.com/brooks-dunn-neon-moon/>

Warning: This song is a bit of an earwig. I just want to share the delightful pain of that imaginary burrowing insect, although I suppose earwigs could apply to other things than songs.

I made reference to this song in my posting: My Musical Roots?, since then I have played this YouTube video about 20 times. As mentioned, back in the 90s, my pick-em-up radio had decided to only feed me AM stations, leaving me with nothing but country stations for music. I had experienced a double whammy I really do not need to get into here. At the time it seemed like they were playing this song at least once an hour. Talk about a crying in your beer song... does that still hold true if it is a dark ale instead of a Busch Light? Bud Light? Coors Light? Cowboys and rednecks like their light beers. I reckon, though, that sometimes a girl just needs to wallow in her nostalgia.

All that aside it is a great song, if you like country music. This video has had 46 million views in the last two years. Not bad for a song released in 1992.

YouTube Video

Remember I warned you.

Subscribe to Curmudgeon Alley